

Washington, DC- Congressman Steve King addressed the crowd at the 40th Anniversary of the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC) from the main stage in the Potomac Ballroom this last Saturday, March 16 from the Gaylord National Hotel. An excerpt from his speech is included; to watch the speech click the image below:

To watch Congressman King's speech, click here.

"If people don't understand that we have a core faith of beliefs, we don't trust their agenda. And that's the difference. But I'm watching it come back here to the United States and I look at the agenda that's just been coming out of Congress recently and it seems to me to be a hollow agenda. There's a lot more to this country than buy, sell, trade, make, gain. Yes, economics are important and yes, free enterprise capitalism is a pillar of American exceptionalism, but it isn't the central point, it isn't the sole point. And it isn't the only piece of the picture of the shining city on the hill."